Meet Hannah

Hannah A. is a Girl Scout from Upper Saddle River's Girl Scout Troop 65258. Hannah and her troop have established a great relationship with our residents through Hannah's friendship with our Director Gail S. This past year the girls have sponsored a game drive and collected new games for our residents to enjoy. Pictured (R) see them playing Connect 4.

We were also just the recipients of everyone's favorite Girl Scout cookies.

Although it's not Girl Scout cookie time, her troop had decided to set aside cookies to donate instead of selling them. We were the lucky recipients of these cookies.

Pictured (L) are our residents receiving this generous donation. We had a Girl Scout cookie social and everyone enjoyed these favorite treats!

Thank you Girl Scout troop 65258! We appreciate you always thinking of us.

You're in Good Hands With Our Staff

We pride ourselves in providing our staff Basic First Aide training from an American Safety & Health Institute approved trainer Medequip. Each year Ruby Herman comes to lead this class. Pictured here are pictures from the class we held in August.

A Grand Relationship

Anyone who has ever received a loving hug, phone call or letter from a grandchild knows how truly special—and beneficial—that bond is.

Intergenerational relationships are important for the emotional growth of a child, who develops a sense of belonging and identity by feeling part of a larger family. A grandparent can strengthen this connection by passing on family history, heritage and traditions.

Grandparents can also serve as a child's source of wisdom, emotional support, entertainment and, of course, unconditional love.

In return, grandchildren bring meaning and joy to a grandparent's life. By being able to play a nurturing role and watch grandchildren grow—without the responsibility of primary parenting—grandparents experience an increased sense of self-worth and purpose.

One of the biggest rewards of the grandparent-grandchild relationship is learning new things from each other. Together, grandparents and grandchildren can share and explore existing passions and new interests, and both old and young can experience the world from a fresh perspective.

National Assisted Living Week Starts on Grandparents Day Sunday, September 8th

We always encourage residents to Spark their Creative Side. The arts are a great way to enrich residents' quality of life. We want to thank the Willows at Ramapo for inviting us to their recent painting class.

Nilly Landa, our Activities Director provides weekly painting classes for our residents. We will be displaying all our work during National Assisted Living Week.
